As Will says his line, Terry takes a sip from his water glass. All of a sudden, the glass breaks in his iron-tight grip. Will gets interrupted by the commotion.	Will: Steve's training to take over Tentacular's place as Stocker's hometown monster wrestler. He's pretty out of shap- SFX: Glass shattering
A crew member swiftly comes in frame to collect the broken glass and replaces it with a plastic cup filled with water. It's a very fast motion as though it's not the first time this has happened.	Terry: Oops! My bad.
	Will: (to Terry) You alright buddy?
Terry brushes off the situation like it was nothing.	Terry: (to Will) Yeah, I'm good. You were saying.
Will goes back to addressing camera.	Will: Right, so Steve's training gets off to a slow start.

Out of nowhere Terry's director's chair collapses under him and cuts Will off. Terry catches himself so he doesn't fall to the ground. It's almost as if he was expecting it to happen.	Will: But when he incorporates salsa dancing into his workouts, he starts impor- SFX: Chair breaking
Again, a crew member instinctually glides into frame, removing the broken chair and quickly replacing it with another that looks sturdier.	Terry: Sorry everybody!
	Will: (to Terry, teasing) Looks like someone had a little too many chips and salsa, huh?
Again, Terry acts like it's nothing as he boasts about his muscles.	Terry: (to Will) No, this happens a lot actually. Those chairs can't hold up against my rock-hard glutes.
Will looks down at his own body trying to figure out why his own chair hasn't collapsed under him.	Will: Oh...
Terry goes back to addressing camera.	Terry: Steve's salsa dancing may have helped, but nothing can stand up to Tentacular's brute strength.
Will addressing camera.	Will: We'll see about that.
